My dear Sir -

In response to your request, I wrote a note early in March. Evidently ^{they have} ~~it~~ has not reached you. (Note early in Mar. + reg. return receipt Apr. 10)

I have been unable to locate the original correspondence between James Churchward and Wm. Niven. Therefore it is impossible to know exactly where the Niven collection was located.

According to the book "The Last Continent of Mu" by James Churchward, Wm Niven made his archaeological discovery in "The Valley of Mexico, from Texcoco to Hualnepantha." Perhaps the collection has been stored in one of the archaeological collections in Mexico City.

If I can be of any further assistance to you, please do not hesitate to write.

With best wishes for your success
