Dear Sir,

Recently I came into possession of 1975 correspondence between a Mexican government agency "DIRRECCION GENERAL DE PROGRAMACION Y ESTUDIOS ECONOMICOS" and Mr. Howard Keresy. Copies enclosed.

Mr. Keresy, as the administrator of the estate of James Churchward, was queried as to the whereabouts of archaeological objects discovered by William Niven from Mexico that were referenced in James Churchward's books.

By return post, Mr. Keresy asserted that he had no correspondence between William Niven and James Churchward, nor was he aware of the location of the artifacts.

I am writing to enquire as to the proper procedure to contact the original department or the one that inherited the responsibilities to find out if any further information has been discovered concerning the tablets found by William Niven.

I am Jack Churchward, great-grandson of James Churchward, and I am researching Niven's Valley of Mexico Tablets for my next book.

Thank you for your time and attention,

Sincerely,

Jack E. Churchward
